

KEYNOTE: The University and the Social Imagination

00:25:21 CGHE Annual Conference: Welcome back everyone to the final session of the 2022 CGHE Annual Conference. A reminder that this keynote is being recorded and will be posted online later this week. Please keep yourself muted unless you have been asked to speak or ask a question.

00:25:50 CGHE Annual Conference: To ask a question, use the chat function and write out the question. At the end of the presentation, if your question is selected by the Chair you will be invited to ask it yourself directly. When invited to ask a question, please unmute yourself, switch on your video, and state your name and where you are from.

00:54:47 Olga Mun: Inspiring talk. In rethinking and reimagining environmental sustainability of the universities including UK universities, how do UK universities work on rethinking their financial sustainability and reliance on international student fees?

00:54:56 Simon Marginson: By now you will know how it works, colleagues. To enter the discussion in this very important session, post your question or statement in the Chat.

00:56:01 Dr. Altaf Qadeer: Keri: Your comparison of many interrelated factors is very useful. I am also thinking of protecting/ considering various forms of environment; such as cognitive environment, social environment, language environment, psychological environment, cultural environment and the physical environment ++ many more forms). Perhaps universities can start research and new courses on the multiple forms of environment (see example above). Some possibilities are here, please click on: <https://cognitivenet.wordpress.com/> email: altafqadeer@yahoo.com

01:00:56 Piers von Berg: If there is to be a imaginative shift in universities, would that involve imagining the purpose of a university education as one of cultivating citizens conscious of their identities and agencies as part of an interconnected world? If so, what changes will that require in teaching e.g. in curricula and pedagogy (such as inclusion of education for sustainability alongside or part of disciplinary study)?

01:02:46 Laura Czerniewicz: 🍷

01:04:31 Soyoung Lee: Many thanks for your presentation. Apart from inter-disciplinary or community learning, what about knowledge-specific and disciplinary imagination? Can you share any implications about different 'imaginative reconstitution' across disciplines in developing collective agency?

01:05:29 CE Dr Sumanta Bhattacharya: now a days we are very active about technological growth, but due to industrial revolution 4.0 and society 5.0 profession, we need to concentrate on global resources management, environment sustainable development and climate change. as green environment university established by great poet and noble laureate rabindranath tagor at shanti nicketan, where environment friendly product production along with spiritual growth and mental strength traning were provided.

01:05:29 Diana Laurillard: I'd like to suggest a 5th lens: the educational lens – to scale up the ways of changing behaviour. The CoMOOC model Eileen and I were showing is relational and critical and supports experiment, and for professional development represents your 'pivot towards adult learning'. It could enable us to support the imaginative reconstitution of the future. Could that work?

01:05:56 Altaf Qadeer: The beauty of education for every heart. Your recommendations are nice. environment research and education from the perspective of social science, physical science and more

01:05:56 Dr.mutiah: Thank you.

01:06:50 Altaf Qadeer: My question: do you think my idea given above is workable in the universities? Thanks Keri for your wonderful ideas!

01:07:21 Golo Henseke: Many of the issues you raise are highly politicised. Universities will need to make a stance. Are they up for it?

01:15:07 CGHE Annual Conference: Keri's keynote is also available as a paper on the CGHE website: <https://www.researchcghe.org/publications/working-paper/the-university-and-the-social-imagination/>

01:16:13 Pete: Great presentation, and a really stimulating and well-run conference

01:18:42 Laura Czerniewicz: Thank you for the paper, also really enjoyed the visuals in the excellent presentation.

01:19:06 kcattell: Inspiring presentation and discussion. Thank you very much!

01:19:09 Laura Czerniewicz: Thanks also to all the behind-the-scenes people who made this such a smooth running conference

01:19:25 Olga Mun: I agree we need deeper and more complex philosophical conversations with students and with each other on the role of higher education

01:19:34 Luis Kauachi | CIHE-BC: Fascinating proposals!! Let's change the philosophical baseline and mindset of our to-be graduates from the outset before our institutions stomp their academic imagination!

01:21:15 Amardeep Kumar: Thank you CGHE for sharing Keri's paper!

01:21:36 Victoria: Thank you!

01:21:56 Diana Laurillard: Beautifully argued keri. thank you!

01:22:50 paolo sorzio: Thank you all the people involved in the organization of this stimulating conference. Thank you Keri for your talk which is very relevant for cultural/environmental change

01:22:56 Keri Facer: Thanks everyone, I will save chat and think about your questions

01:24:22 CGHE Annual Conference: Thank you all for joining us over the past two days! All material from the conference, including recordings of every session, will be on the conference website later this week: <https://www.cgheconference2022.com/>

01:25:04 Dr.mutiah: Thank you all for presenting real universal issues. Collaboration and support among universities may enhance and put all the recommendations into applicable matter .Thank you again ..Dr. Mutia Alnimrat. Jordan.

01:25:05 Olga Mun: Thank you for a wonderful conference

01:25:08 Pernille Fraser: Very worth attending. Thank you to all. I would be interested to hear from more Neurodivergent and/ or disabled educators and researchers next time.

01:25:46 Marco Antonio Carvalho - UNICAMP: Thank you for the opportunity to participate in this event! Marco Carvalho, from Brazil!

01:25:46 Victoria: Congratulations for the conference!

01:25:48 Cristina Helena Almeida de Carvalho: Thank you so much for CGHE event. Thank you all speakers and staff have involved in the organization. Wonderful conference!

01:26:51 kcattell: Thank you for the many valuable learning opportunities the conference represented. It was a privilege to participate in it.

01:27:00 Diana Laurillard: Excellent presentations and lively discussions all through - thanks so much to all.

01:27:09 Vesna Holubek: Thank you, great conference!

01:27:21 Jihong Chen: Thank you