

Internationalising the ‘plural society’: Alternative transnational higher education in Malaysia

1 June 2023

00:57:19 Simon Marginson: We welcome your questions for Mayumi!

00:58:45 Lilan CHEN: thank you Mayumi Sensei for this interesting presentation. I have the following three questions, hope you can help me to figure out. many thanks in advance! 1.To what extent these three universities can be internationalized?

2.To what extent do local universities contribute to the plural society and internationalization of HEIs?

3.What kinds of policies do they have to hire and retain international students to achieve plural society?

01:01:18 Hans de Wit: Thank you for this interesting presentation and research. It reflects the multifacetedness and evolution of internationalization policies and strategies. Can you say something about the different rationales of the institutions to operate in Malaysia, are they different or similar and are they in the last two cases more driven by the home institution and revenue generation or by the host needs?

01:05:29 Diana Laurillard: Thank you very much for these insights. My apologies for having to leave early.

01:06:18 CGHE Webinars: Thank you for joining us today. A recording of this session will be posted on the CGHE site:
<https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/internationalising-the-plural-society-alternative-transnational-higher-education-in-malaysia/>

01:06:40 CGHE Webinars: Our next webinar, ‘Being and becoming academics: cases of overseas returnees’ career pathways in China’, will take place on Tuesday from 2pm (UK). You can register here:
<https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/being-and-becoming-academics-cases-of-overseas-returnees-career-pathways-in-china/>

01:12:42 James Otieno Jowi: In Africa, after the COVID 19 pandemic, ICTs and digitalization seems to be coming in than was before and could be a new factor in internationalization, which could also have an impact on mobility. Are there any similar experiences in Malaysia where ICTs have been advanced for years?