

Is it Time to Rethink Our Model of Post-Secondary Education? Progressing a Tertiary Education Eco-System

22 June 2023

00:49:30 Simon Marginson: Please forward your questions for Ellen, or statements about her presentation, using the Chat

00:54:40 Simon Marginson: QUESTIONS PLEASE

00:54:41 Kevin McStravock: Thanks for a very interesting presentation Ellen. What are your thoughts on what quality assurance should look like in an integrated tertiary system given that pre-integration, QA systems and agencies supporting QA in most countries would differ (often quite significantly) between FE, HE and apprenticeships?

00:54:53 Colin McCaig: While your focus was on systems, there was little discussion about the market drivers behind how those systems have developed? Markets begat differentiation and thus favour elite institutions. How can we persuade national governments (e.g. in England) to think about abandoning marketised competition when elites has such lobbying power in policymaking circles?

01:00:58 Simon Marginson: we can still take a couple more questions

01:03:00 Josh Patel: very brief one - is Ellen aware of any studies on how lived student experiences of learning and their outcomes might or do differ between existing post-secondary education and emerging tertiary eco-systems? is it too early to say?
