

Differential Peer Effects of International Roommates on College Outcomes: Evidence from Students of Disadvantaged Backgrounds

12 October 2023

00:58:03 Agung Nugroho: That is a brilliant research which could provide crucial additional knowledge related to the relationship between domestic and international students. I was however wondering if you also considered students overall activities during their studies that impact their achievement. As you mentioned in your findings that there is a slight increase in students GPA. Is this increase merely caused by the international and domestic students interaction or are there other factors that become the potential causes?

01:00:37 Melissa Whatley: At the beginning of the presentation, if I'm remembering correctly, you showed that international students have better academic performance compared to domestic students in general. Can you talk a bit more about how you are accounting for initial academic performance in your analyses? I'm wondering if the positive effects you're seeing for domestic students due to living with an international student or rather due to living with a student who performs better academically. Are you able to tease apart these two characteristics (international student status and academic performance) in your analyses?

01:01:00 Ameet Bali: It is real an international which really others want to get such environment in aboard universities.
