

Racism and Coloniality in Global Higher Education, 07 September 2021

00:17:59 Kunwar Jee Sinha: I think we should be given the Certificate of participation as well

00:18:05 CGHE Webinars: Details on full series: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/cghe-webinar-series-racism-and-coloniality-in-global-higher-education/>

00:20:44 CGHE Webinars: As Simon mentioned, for attendees that come to at least six webinars of the eight in the series, we will offer a certificate of participation on request. You will just need to drop a note to researchcghe@gmail.com at the end of the series.

00:21:01 Andrea Rizzotti: Thanks!!

00:21:10 CGHE Webinars: We will post that email address again throughout the series.

00:30:14 Janet Ilieva: Will you share the slides after the webinar?

00:32:32 CGHE Webinars: Yes, we will put the slides on the CGHE website after the event, Janet.

00:33:37 Janet Ilieva: Thank you.

00:50:13 Tanisha Pandey: Is this a part of the CGHE Webinars as well?

00:50:24 Sarah Dyer: Thank you Solomon.

00:50:48 Tanisha Pandey: Thank you Solomon for your presentation and for sharing your experiences.

00:51:18 Dr Tushar Brahmbhatt: certificate?

00:51:31 SERAP EMIL: Thank you very much Solomon for your insightful presentation.

00:53:26 Simon Marginson: Colleagues our Q&A is about to start. Please make your questions and comments in the Chat, and we will select the participants from there!

00:53:27 Jean Lee Farmer: Thank you Solomon. My own PhD is on being a black woman academic in South African HE. I question why it is said that Black academics fail in HE whereas it may be that HE fail Black academics.

00:53:27 Romina Miorelli: Thank you so much Salomon for sharing your experience and your research. I very much enjoyed your openness and passionate account.

00:55:10 CGHE Webinars: You can register for Thursday's session here: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/affirmative-action-and-transformation-in-south-african-higher-education/>

00:55:14 Mariya Ivancheva: Natasha can you please address the question which were the 'low hanging fruit' when it came to student feedback on what is to be done - it might be useful for us all!

00:56:17 Tanisha Pandey: You mentioned the use of CRT and intersectionality in your works. Could you comment further on how you made use of these theories and what aspect of your findings would have been 'incomplete' without these lenses?

01:00:32 Richard Budd: There is a lot written about decolonising the curriculum, and often decolonising is reduced to this aspect alone. How can we go further than this, to decolonise our teaching practices, rather than 'simply' diversifying and recentering our content?

01:01:02 David Mills: Just to clarify, the final webinar in this series will be given by Kirsten Edwards and Annabelle Estera, as well as by Riyadh Shahjahan. Their topic is 'Towards 'Decolonizing' Curriculum and Pedagogy (DCP) across Disciplines and Global Higher Education Contexts: A Critical Synthesis'

01:01:13 Abass Isiaka: Thank you for your presentation, Solomon. Do you think the Teaching Excellence Framework (TEF) has a role in the perpetuation of epistemic violence against BAIS in the UK HE?

01:03:35 Jean Lee Farmer: Being Black is exhausting. Everywhere and not least in academia.

01:03:53 Gabriela Wale Soto: Thank you Solomon and Natasha. I would like to ask how do you account for the role of language in the reproduction of racialisation inequalities? I would also like to comment on the speakers own positionalities - what do we make of the fact that those doing "race work" are often black and women?

01:04:24 Jean Lee Farmer: I am sorry to leave now. I will be in the following seminars.

01:04:30 Tanisha Pandey: Very well phrased, Gabriela.

01:04:35 Dr Tushar Brahmabhatt: It will never happen in India...

01:10:03 Miguel Perez-Milans: Building on Jean Lee's point as well as on Gabriela's comment in the chat, I think on the long-standing debate on recognition/redistribution in redressing the processes that we are talking about. How do we move beyond talking about it (which our institutions keep profiting on) towards more re-distributive forms of transformation? What theories are there for us to image and enable alternative forms of daily collaboration and co-action as researchers, beyond the contents that we teach?

01:10:05 Ann-Marie Houghton: Many thanks for the presentations and for raising the tangible actions macro and micro, certainly welcome site of that document. Thank you.

01:11:03 CGHE Webinars: Thank you for joining us today. You can learn more about the full webinar series here: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/cghe-webinar-series-racism-and-coloniality-in-global-higher-education/>

01:11:53 CGHE Webinars: The next webinar in the series will be on Thursday, 'Affirmative action and transformation in South African Higher Education'. You can register here: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/affirmative-action-and-transformation-in-south-african-higher-education/>

01:12:23 Sarah Dyer: Would it be worth setting up something like a padlet for people to share questions (and answer them) and share resources across the month? I personally would find that really useful.

01:12:42 CGHE Webinars: A reminder that for attendees coming to at least six webinars of the eight in the series, we will offer a certificate of participation on request. You will just need to drop a note to researchcghe@gmail.com at the end of the series.

01:12:54 Miriam Barak: Thank you very much for an interesting discussion. Looking forward for the next meetings.

01:13:24 Emma Rawlings Smith: A padlet is a great suggestion Sarah

01:14:08 mutia Alnimrat: Thank you for this presentation. White and black are humans that are respected.
