

Higher education and the pandemic in East and Southeast Asia: Are there models here for the rest of the world?

17 September 2020

00:34:17 Joyce Lau: Dear Prof Azman - Hello from Hong Kong! May I ask where your paper will be published? Thank you, Joyce from Times Higher Education

00:48:39 Norzaini Azman: HI JOYCE. It is expected to be published in sept. the title is - A critical analysis of the Malaysian HEIs' response towards C-19.: sustaining academic Program Delivery. Keep in touch. We will share it with you.

01:04:58 David Law: I would like to ask Wenqin about whether he sees online delivery as likely to become part of the way in which Sino-Foreign Joint Institutes can operate on a permanent basis.

01:09:30 Simon Marginson: questions please!

01:15:28 Sanfeng Miao: Thank you Dr. Shen for sharing your insights! I wonder how students and faculty respond to the decisions made, especially when teaching and learning had to be interrupted after it was resumed, was there any pushback and how institutions handled it if so?

01:17:57 Joyce Lau: Prof Yonezawa, what positive examples can be learned from Japan?

01:21:57 Lan Anh Nguyen: I would like to ask Prof Azman what the most important implications she would like to share to neighboring countries in ASEAN region from her critical analysis research of Malaysian HEIs' responses?

01:22:59 Stephen Naicken: Prof. Azman. How have you progressed with the challenges of rural Internet access?

01:26:10 Russell Smith: Thanks everyone. Striking out how common many issues are for institutions internationally.

01:27:07 Saumen Chattopadhyay: I am curious to know whether the private universities have suffered loss of revenue and how have they negotiated with the pandemic as compared to the public funded universities in Malaysia and Japan?

01:30:16 Mokhidil Mamasolieva: I am curious to know to what extent the 'pausing' mode of international scholarships for International students negatively contribute to the slowing of student mobility?

01:30:26 CGHE Webinars: Our next webinar will be on Tuesday next week on 'Higher education and the pandemic in India'. Head here to register:

<https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/higher-education-and-the-pandemic-in-india/>

01:33:54 Linh Nguyen: Thank you so much Norzaini, Wenqin, Akiyoshi and Simon for sharing your expertise, and thanks everyone for the interesting and fruitful discussion. The closing statements are very powerful.

01:34:26 Cristina Carvalho: It is really nice webinar! Thank you!

01:34:28 Joyce Lau: Thank you so much!

01:34:32 Zachery Spire: Thanks colleagues! Brilliant debate. Especially tensions between autonomy and financing of HEIs.

01:34:36 Lan Anh Nguyen: Thank you Simon and speakers for such an interesting webinar.

01:34:42 Xixi ZHANG: Thank you very much!

01:34:45 Stephanie Hall: Thanks All!

01:35:16 Bernard Lee: Thank you Simon and speakers!

01:35:17 Hu Jinwen: thanks !

01:35:25 Darren McDermott: Many thanks

01:35:25 Yiyuan Zhang: Thanks y'all!

01:35:27 Saumen Chattopadhyay: Thanks.