

Higher education in a momentous US election year: Racism, the pandemic, science, democracy and the public good, 29 September 2020

00:48:06 Simon Marginson: Colleagues let's have some questions for our speakers - whether probing, curly and tricky, or dreamy, ambiguous and wistful - now is the time to ask them and to join the conversation with BP, OYP and BT

00:57:01 Hector Rios: Hi, I have one to Barret. Can we expect some relevant policy announcement during the presidential debates? (related to free education, changes in loans or support for university during the pandemic)

01:00:34 Trif Victorița: The US election is very complex. Who profits from the contrasts between race versus civil society or between educometrics and econometrics?

01:10:12 Mohamad Moghadam: to Brian: US foreign policy alongside its domestic policy has been very aggressive based on 0 or 1 look. this foreign policy bans long term international collaboration between member of scientific societies.

01:11:41 Youn Lee: Greetings, Thank you first for the interesting and timely discussion.

I guess throughout the webinars, the political tension between the US and China has been a critical issue. One of the biggest reason why international students from China are considering to study abroad seems to be because of their autonomy, which may be a reason why they would like to study in the US despite the tension. But if we take todays discussion into account, I do have doubt that they may also consider to select another country instead.

Well considering that the two countries has the best-quality data, do you think the new presidency would take different position for international collaborations, especially with China?

01:15:52 CGHE Webinars: Our next webinar will be on Thursday on 'Surviving a crisis: Resilience, adaptation, and transformation in higher education after the collapse of the Soviet Union'. You can register here: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/surviving-a-crisis-resilience-adaptation-and-transformation-in-higher-education-after-the-collapse-of-the-soviet-union/>

01:16:22 OiYan Poon: I believe the Trump admin has recently restricted student visas to students from many Asian and African nations. China was not on that list, interestingly.

01:16:48 CGHE Webinars: A recording of this webinar will be on the CGHE site tomorrow morning here: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/higher-education-in-a-momentous-us-election-year-racism-the-pandemic-science-democracy-and-the-public-good/>

01:18:13 Youn Lee: Thank you Dr. Pusser and Dr. Poon!

01:18:55 Cristina Carvalho: Thank you all for nice presentations!

01:20:51 Alison Wheaton: thank you to all of the presenters!

01:21:15 Brian Pusser: Thank you all!

01:21:26 Linh Nguyen: Thank you so much Brian, OiYan, Barrett, Simon and every, it's a very fascinating seminar and discussion.

01:21:46 Saumen Chattopadhyay: Great discussion.. enriching indeed!