

Mapping graduate employability and career development in higher education research, 4 May 2021

00:39:34 Simon Marginson: colleagues, in response to this excellent presentation, you might have many questions and other things to say. let's have them, now! Time to post your thoughts and especially your interrogations in the chat!

00:42:35 Simon Marginson: questions!!

00:42:57 Soyoung Lee: Why do you think the 'perceived employability' of students are studied more by HE researchers than by career development researchers? Do you think it's somehow related to different assumptions underlying the GE and CD literature?

00:43:54 Hongwei Gu: With the changes in expectations from students for career development, how is data and technology changing the landscape?

00:44:18 Jisun Jung: Thanks for sharing interesting study. Were there any strong cluster of 'macro economic condition' rather than individual level issues ?

00:45:12 Hongwei Gu: Thank you Michael

00:47:40 Abisola Obasanya: Thank you so much Michael for sharing. Thank you for the CitNet Idea. In your search, did you find any interesting insight about employability particularly in relations to Africa or Africans?

00:51:58 Simon Marginson: Would love to hear from you at this point . . questions please!

00:54:58 Golo Henseke: 1. I am always a left confused by discussion of employability. There are skills to do a job and then there are skills to get a job or get on in a career. They might overlap, they might not. How much does the literature distinguish conceptually between skills (understood widely including traits, attitudes, knowledge) to do and to get the job. 2. the literature seems very supply-side focused (on the individual), but how specific are valued by employers and society changes (e.g. social skills) How is that reflected in employability research?

00:59:24 Jisun Jung: thank you!

01:04:26 Fenella Somerville: In increasingly constrained labour markets, are either forms of literature showing a move towards preparing graduates for work and earning a decent livelihood versus getting jobs?

01:04:36 Zachery Spire: Have you encountered the work on Life Design? Colleagues at Stanford have been developing Life Design as a bridge between HE studies and transitioning and translating students' HE to post-HE life course. Have you encountered this and if so, where might it fit into your analysis?

01:04:46 Kelber Tozini: You just mentioned about the U.S. being dominant in one topic. I was wondering whether there was an influence on institutional type or rankings.

01:12:33 CGHE Webinars: Thank you for joining us today, a recording of this webinar will be on the CGHE site tomorrow morning: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/mapping-graduate-employability-and-career-development-in-higher-education-research/>

01:12:57 Michael Healy: Leonard Holmes: Position, Possession and Process.

01:13:38 CGHE Webinars: Our next webinar will be on Thursday, 'Intersectoral relationships within higher education: the FE/HE interface in the UK'. You can register here: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/intersectoral-relationships-within-higher-education-the-fehe-interface-in-the-uk/>

01:14:35 CGHE Webinars: And our Annual Conference is next week! 11-12 May, still time to register: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-annual-conference/cghe-annual-conference-2021-remaking-higher-education-for-a-more-equal-world/>

01:15:28 Lauren Bolz: Thanks for a great presentation Michael! I'll certainly be trying to include both GE and CD literature in my own dissertation after listening in today.

01:19:06 Zachery Spire: Thanks Michael and Colleagues!

01:20:16 Victorița Trif: Thank you!

01:20:36 Kody Steffy: Thanks for the most helpful presentation!

01:20:38 Bernard Lee: Thank you, Michael and Simon!

01:20:47 Herminia Alonso: Thank you

01:20:50 Linda Wilkinson: Great presentation - thank you!!

01:20:58 Cristina Carvalho: Thank you, Michael! Really nice presentation!

01:21:10 Diane Arthur: Really useful conversation, thank you Michael!

01:21:47 Michael Healy: Thank you everyone. Please feel free to contact me via my website: mojohealy.com

01:22:05 Fenella Somerville: Thank you, Michael. All the best with finishing the PhD